Lacombe News From the Past From Our Files of 31 Years Ago

Dr. Anuger, Dentist, has taken up his residence in town. He will have his office in the Victoria Hotel.

The local curlers attended the Calgary Bonspiel last week but unfortunately did not secure a place in the competitions. However Trimble won the prize in the points competition.

E. E. Cole, of Blindman Valley, and family have taken up their residence in town. Mr. Cole will succeed Mr. Palmer in Puffer's meat market.

At Dr. Findlater's sale, on Saturday, while there was not a large crowd, yet bidding was brisk. Nine cows and calves sold at an average of $46.50. Two heifers and their calves sold at $38.50 and $40.00 and a milk cow was sold for $38.50. Mr. Sisty from the head of Blindman valley was the principal purchaser.

An "At Home" in connection with the Fairview Presbyterian Church will be held at Mrs. F. Duckett's, Fairview on Friday evening, beginning at seven o'clock, p.m. Refreshments, music and games.

An enthusiastic meeting of the directors of the Agricultural Society was held in the parlors of the Victoria Hotel on Saturday last. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. A. C. Milne was re-appointed secretary-treasurer. It was decided to hold meetings at the following places: Canyon, Turville, and Arborvale. The lecturers appointed for these meetings were Dr. Harrington, W. F. Puffer, Mr. Watson, Col. Gregory, W. Crow, and Mr. Flewelling. The dates will not be fixed until the convention which is to be held in Edmonton. A. T. Inskip and W. Crow were appointed as a committee for the prize list advertising; Dr. Harrington and Puffer for special prizes. Mrs. F. R. Watson, Mrs. J. A. Fincham, Mrs. Jas. W. Nichol, and Mrs. J. Weir Nichol were the ladies appointed for the revision of the prize list.

ESTAVAN TEACHER DIES IN AUTO CRASH

REGINA, April 8—Harry Wallace 28-year-old school teacher of Estevan, Sask., was instantly killed in a car smash here Saturday afternoon at a street intersection. The car was hurled on its side when it was struck by an auto driven by Lloyd C. Todd, of Wilcox, Sask. Three passengers in Wallace's car were uninjured. They were Miss Latha Wilson, school teacher of Valley View school at Estevan, and Mrs. N. R. Bugg, and her eight-year-old daughter.

Wallace was driving across an intersection when the rear right wheel was struck by the front right wheel of Todd's car. The autos were piled against each other. Wallace sustained a compound fracture of the skull.

GIRL KILLED AS CAR OVERTURNS

Macleod, April 8—Viola Florence Heggen, member of the Macleod basketball team, was instantly killed Saturday evening about 14 miles east of here when the automobile in which she was riding to Lethbridge for a basketball game turned over in the ditch.

She, with Lucille West, was riding in the front seat of a car driven by Harry J. Whittle and Harry Perkins occupied the rumble seat. They escaped injuries.

The accident occurred as the car driven by Mr. Whittle was about to pass a car in charge of Malcolm Shaw of Lac la Biche, Alberta.

As Whittle's car turned over, Whittle, Miss West and Perkins were thrown clear, but Miss Heggen was caught in some way and as the top of the car struck the ground, the steel frame struck her head, killing her instantly.

Mr. Shaw immediately drove Mr. Perkins to Monarch where he reported the accident to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at both Macleod and Lethbridge and police from Macleod with Coroner A. E. Grady hurried to the scene with Dr. Haig.

Jurymen were sworn in on the spot viewed the scene of the accident and the body was removed.

BADMINTON CLUB DANCE

There will be a dance in the Adelphi Hotel on Friday, April 20th, under the auspices of the Badminton Club. Dancing will start at 9 o'clock and will continue until 2 a.m. Admission 50c. each, including lunch. Get your ticket now from members of the club and come and enjoy yourself. Bob Paulsen and his dance band have been engaged for the occasion.

The Annual Meeting of the Lacombe Golf and Country Club will be held in the Town Hall at 8 p.m. on Monday, April 16th.

HOG MARKET OUTLOOK IS PROMISING

The consumption of pig products in Canada during 1932 reached the highest point in the history of the industry at 91.7 pounds per capita. This statement appears in the Agricultural situation bulletin just issued by the department of agriculture at Ottawa, in which the following summary of the hog situation appears:

"Briefly summarizing the situation, it would appear that the hog outlook is favorable to the producer. While it is likely that there will be some temporary price declines during the present year, the trend is upward. Market supply prospects are for a moderate volume during the first half of the year, followed by a fairly substantial increase. At market prices such as ruled during the early part of the year, there should be greater interest in the purchasing of feed grains and a falling off of the number of unfinished pigs offered. Prospects for export appear to be satisfactory and the restrictions existing on exports from foreign countries selling to the British market are working quite favorably toward stabilization of prices. Despite the present favorable export outlook, improvement in breeding, feeding selection and pack so as to secure a large precentage top grades of bacon is much more desirable than a marked increase in general production.

"It is quite safe to forecast a substantial improvement in the quality of the 1934 production, as a result of improvement in type of sow and sire used as foundation stock, and of better feeding practices than in any previous period in the history of the industry in Canada. This is highly favorable to Canadian export prospects."

PARENTS GUILTY OF NEGLIGENCE

Sentence will be passed in eight days upon Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Sparks of Ponoka, who pleaded guilty before Magistrate E. H. Jones, of Lacombe, Saturday on a charge of neglecting their children.

Inspector J. T. Parker of the Child Welfare Department and principal witness, declared Mr. and Mrs. Sparks were the parents of five children. Mrs. Sparks was 22 years of age. Upon seeing the oldest child, Mr. Parker had asked to see the youngest, Viola and Helen, aged two and one years, respectively.

He had found them lying in separate boxes in a cold, draughty upstairs room. They were poorly clad and their chilled little bodies were covered with sores. He said that, when he spoke to the parents about the condition of the children, they admitted their negligence, but pleaded they had no money. It was later divulged that Sparks, employed by G. N. Field, earned $65 per month.

Dr. M. Graham, medical health officer for Ponoka, and Deputy Mayor J. W. O'Brien gave evidence in corroboration of that given by Inspector Parker. Dr. Graham declared the children, because of their treatment, would never develop fully physically or mentally. Had it not been for the inspection made and had their condition continued as it was, they would have died, he said, stating that it would require a year of medical care to bring them to health.

The children were placed in the care of Mrs. L. E. Thoreson and the medical health officer. It was stated that if they regain their health and their home conditions improve, they may be returned to their parents in one year.

LACOMBE BULL SALE

The annual sale of Pure-Bred bulls will be held this year on June 7th and entries will close on April 25th.

The Lacombe sale is held at a late date each year to enable breeders and mixed farmers to exchange their herd bulls and supply themselves with sires at a time when their cattle are being put out to pasture.

There will be a good entry this year from which every prospective buyer will be able to select high class animals.

The prospects are that all breeds will be well represented and judging from sales already held, the prices will be fair to both seller and buyer.

Keep the date in mind and if you have a bull to sell send for an entry form to the Secretary, D. F. Chisholm and make your entry before April 25, so that sufficient time may be given the Veterinary to test the animals at their own farms.

Aunt Rosa: "Oh! can my eyes deceive me? Mrs. Chubb, Mrs. Chubb, bring a skirt—quickly!" See "Marrying Anne" at the United Church on Wednesday, April 18th.

An enjoyable bridge party was held in the Empress Hotel under the auspices of the Lord Lascelles Chapter of the I.O.D.E. The prizes went to Mrs. F. Bowtell and Mr. Gilday.

OTTAWA HEARS JAMES FAHEY MAY GO FREE

Ottawa, April 6—James Fahey may go free without further formality.

It was learned here today that the American ambassador to Canada has been instructed to wire the United States consul in Edmonton, to ask for a stay of proceedings in the extradition proceedings recently commenced to take the Jasper man back to the United States on the grounds that he is really Frank Grigware who escaped from Leavenworth penitentiary in 1910 shortly after commencing a life term on a charge of robbing the U.S. mails at Omaha, Nebraska.

Officials at the Embassy declined to comment on the news, beyond admitting that it was correct and that doubtless the department of justice in Washington wished to make further investigations.

While officials here declined to discuss details, it is hinted that the wide support aroused for Fahey is not without influence upon the federal authorities, and there is a strong possibility that Fahey may be turned loose on parole.

When H. M. Collins, U.S. consul in Edmonton, was asked regarding the above despatch, he said formally that he had no statement to make.

James J. Frawley, of the attorney general's department, who is acting for the U.S. authorities in the matter said that the procedure to be followed was simply that in any other court case, when further evidence is required.

"When the hearing opens before His Honor Judge Crawford here on April 13, I will ask His Honor, if so instructed, to grant an adjournment for whatever time is necessary."

REV. DR. McKELLAR DEAD

Oldest missionary of the Presbyterian church in Western Canada, Rev. Dr. Hugh McKellar, D.D., who came to the west in 1874 and to Alberta in 1905, died at his home in Calgary, Friday evening after a brief illness. Dr. McKellar, who was in his ninety-second year, had made his home in Calgary for the last 12 years, residing at 225 Twenty-fifth avenue northeast.

He was born in Appin, Argyleshire, Scotland, Sept. 11, 1841, and came to Canada at the age of 11 years with his parents, the trip being made in a sailing vessel from Scotland. The family settled in Lambton County, near Sarnia, Ont. Dr. McKellar received his education in Sarnia, and after some time spent teaching school he entered Knox College, Toronto. Following his graduation in 1874, he came to Western Canada, and was ordained by the Presbytery of Winnipeg and sent to take charge of the mission at Prince Albert, driving by buckboard all the way from Winnipeg in November.

After a number of years' service in the ministry at Prince Albert, he took up work at High Bluff in Manitoba until 1888, when he returned to Ontario and had pastorates at Mount Forest and Martintown in Glengarry for about 15 years. In 1903 he came west again and was minister of the Foothills mission at Priddis, and at Red Lake, until his retirement from active service in 1912, when he came to Calgary to reside.

All dogs must be registered and have their tags by May 1st or they will be impounded. Tags now on sale at the Town Office. Fees same as last year.

BOXING TOURNAMENT

Fight fans all over Central Alberta are due for a real fistic treat at Ponoka on Wednesday, April 18, when battlers from far and wide will compete for supremacy. Pete Holm, promotor of this tourny and Jim Toller, manager, are both well known to the fight fans of the province, and they promise you some classy exhibitions of the fistic art. On the card are such well known fighters as Ed Wenstob, Sailor Goodland, Kid Sissons, Battling Gruden, Don Wells, Johnny Smith, Alabama Flash, Kid Watt, Ron Jackson, K.O. Quinn, Young Frizzell, and Frank Palechuk. The main event is between Ed. Wenstob and Sailor Goodland, both light heavies of merit. Sailor Goodland, it will be remembered beat Boehlke in 4 rounds in a scheduled 10 round bout at Carstairs this Spring. Ed. Wenstob can sure handle himself, and this bout is bound to be fast. The Semi-Final should prove exceptionally interesting. Kid Sissons and Battling Cruden, both middleweights should put up a real battle. This will be a 6 round fixture. Don Wells and Johnny Smith, featherweights should turn in a fast bout. And so on down the card. All fighters will be in the pink of condition and are now in hard training. The referee for this big event will be Bill Duffield, of Sylvan Lake. Bill is a real referee and is noted for his fair and impartial decisions. Roy Hoppus and Bill Marshall, both of Lacombe are judges and assure everyone of absolutely fair play. Do not miss this great fight-fest, fans, as it will be the best ever staged in this part of the province. Tickets are now on sale here. See Pete Holm or Jim Toller about your ticket and arrange to be there. Stage seats $1.50, Ringside $1.25, and Rush Seats 75c., including tax. A dance will follow the fight, and Harold Bone and his orchestra will play. Make a night of it everybody and enjoy yourself.

"ECONOMY" NOT A REMEDY

The Canadian National wound up the year with a deficit, all things taken into account, of $50,000,000. The C.P.R. annual report shows a "surplus revenue" account of $16,000,000 for the year, with no dividends paid or to be paid.

This after four years of studied and unstudied "economy" applied to both systems, in the cancelation of trains, the dismissal of employees, and the cutting of wages and salaries. "Ruthless" curtailment kept the operating costs of both systems under the receding level of the operating revenue, but not far enough to leave a margin for return on the investment. wages is only another very effective way of cutting down the demand for goods. Idle men and half-time buy little. When the demand for goods is reduced the railways have less traffic to handle. Part of what the railways saved by paying out less wages they lost through getting back less revenues from freight. The very efforts which they made to save themselves contributed to their difficulties.

What has happened to the railways affords a good illustration of what has been happening the country over, in all lines of business. The employer, forced by pressure of circumstances to dismiss his helpers or reduce their pay, thereby cut down the amount of money in circulation, reduced his own turn-over and his gross revenue.

Sharply contracted credit, "sound" money and the stragulation of trade by prohibitive tariffe have afflicted the railways as they have destroyed general business. No amount of "economy" can put more buying power in circulation; it can only reduce the supply. And the railways, like general business, are starving because the public have been deprived of buying power.

DR. GEO. E. DECKER

Announces the opening of his Dental office, in the Union Bank building on or about May 1st.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEET

A warning concerning Whooping cough was contained in a letter by Dr. Little and read to the Women's Institute members at their meeting on Saturday at the home of Mrs. J. Ford: Dr. Little says:

"Whooping cough has again appeared in some parts of our District. Contrary to public opinion this is one of our serious communicable problems in communicable diseases. The 1931 report shows 32 deaths from whooping cough in Alberta, while in the same year, the combined deaths from Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever totalled only 33. Almost all these deaths from whooping cough were in children under 5 years of age, and a large percentage were infants under one year, so that exposing young children to the disease in order to 'get it over' as some parents do, is dangerous practice. The older the child when they acquire this disease the less is the possibility of disaster to them.

The most effective means of preventing the spread of the disease is isolation of patients and their close contacts. The disease takes about 10 days to develop after the germ has entered the system. During the last few days of this incubation period, the patient is capable of transmitting the disease to others. It should be remembered that the droplets of saliva expelled by a patient in coughing may contain millions of whooping cough germs. Cases should be isolated for a period of 21 days from onset of the cough, and susceptible contacts for 10 days from the date of last exposure.

A serum for use in this disease is now being used experimentally and we hope it may soon be available for treatment.

Members are interested in the Douglas system and this subject came in for some discussion. To augment the funds, it was decided to hold a Bridge party at the home of Mrs. C. E. Todd, on Tuesday evening, April 24th.

Following the business session, a splendid paper on 'Education' was read by Mrs. Ray Saunders.

COURT AGREES INFORMER LAW MOST RIDICULOUS

Montreal, April 7—"Most ridiculous statute in the world," Judge Amedee Monet characterized in court of sessions here today the law ordering sweepstake winnings to be turned over to anyone informing a magistrate of the lottery, at the same time furnishing the name of the winner and the amount won.

The judge's comment followed his imposition of a fine of $5 and costs upon Eugene Anderson, who had pleaded guilty to holding a winning a ticket for $500 in the recent Irish hospital sweepsake. The informer in this case was a friend of Anderson's, Howard Eaton, and the winnings were ordered by the court turned over to the latter. Judge Monet smiled when he ordered money to be turned over to the friendly "informer." Eaton and Anderson laughed outright.

GROCER GUILTY ARSON CHARGE

Drumheller, Alta., April 7—Found guilty of a charge to commit arson, with intent to defraud, Arthur E. Williamson, grocery store manager, Friday was sentenced to a prison term of two years less one day by Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing.

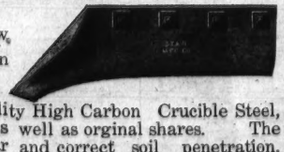

The charge followed the destruction by fire of a store at Newcastle, Alta., early this year. Two men, who confessed setting the fire at the instigation of Williamson, are serving prison sentences for their crime.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

It is possible that an open season for prairie chicken shooting may be declared all over Alberta this year.

Third reading was given in the House of Commons to a bill approving an arrangement for 99 years for joint use of railway tracks and station facilities at Quebec city by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways.

The little cottage in Toronto where Mary Pickford, noted film star, was born, is to be used as a tea room. City council has granted the application of A. Trudelle to operate a tea room there.

"Unified control" of all United States transportation, bringing motor and waterway traffic under the Interstate Commerce commission, was recommended in the report of the transportation conference of 1934.

Over 43,000 more hogs were graded in Canada during the first 10 weeks of this year than in the corresponding period of last year, namely, 657,811 in 1934; 614,687 in 1933.

J. H. Parkin of the National Research Council, Ottawa, states that a new type of aeroplane designed especially for service in mining fields, had been tested at the council's laboratories and was now under construction.

Reduction of freight rates on coarse grain shipped east and west from the prairie provinces to a level approximating the export rate will be urged upon the Dominion government, if a resolution proposed by Premier Brownlee is passed by the Alberta legislature.

Sea serpents are not known to exist, Prof. J. R. Dymond, assistant director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology, stated in a lecture at Toronto. "Those that have been reported and have been scientifically investigated," he said, "have been proved to be cases of mistaken identity."

An unnamed Chicagoan is scheduled to pay an income tax this year of $1,593,633.96, indicating he made from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in 1933.

Plans for the release and return to their homes at Brilliant, B.C., of 500 Doukhobor prisoners now in Piers Island penal colony, have been completed by the British Columbia and Dominion governments.

Weight Of Million In Gold

The weight of a million dollars in gold would depend upon the fineness of the gold and whether it were in form of gold coin or new gold. A million dollars in United States gold coins would weigh 53.50 ounces as there are 25.8 grains of nine-tenths fine gold to the dollar. At the present R.F.C. gold price it takes about 28,000 ounces of newly mined gold to be worth a million dollars.

Agricultural Notes

Many Items Of Interest To The Western Farmer

An ounce of tomato seed will produce 3,500 plants; cabbage seed 1,800 plants, and celery seed 3,000 plants.

According to cold storage tests, the rate of production of eggs is apparently not related to the keeping quality of the eggs.

Storage holdings of dressed poultry in Canada on January 1 of this year amounted ot 11,649,762 pounds, some 40 per cent. greater than at the same date on the previous year.

Exports of Canadian poultry and eggs have increased appreciably in the last few years, while imports of both shell and processed eggs have decreased materially.

Total milk production in Canada last year was approximately the same as for the preceding year which was estimated at 15,917,868,000 pounds.

Nearly 60 per cent. of all Canadian exports which in their original state were produced on Canadian farms went to the United Kingdom during the fiscal year ending March last year.

Farmers in French Morocco in the vicinity of Fez are authorized until the end of the close season of 1934 to destroy wild boars on their lands at any time and by any means except fire, but they must not sell or give away the carcasses.

Dairy production in most foreign countries has shown an increase during the past few years, this trend being especially noticeable in New Zealand and Australia where both butter and cheese production has shown a marked expansion.

Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia are the provinces in which commercial production of tomatoes for canning purposes and fresh sale are of greatest importance, the total acreage being approximately 20,000 acres.—The Agricultural Situation bulletin.

Experiments in Ireland showed that there was no appreciable difference in the keeping quality of eggs from hens confined in pens or on free range, the main factor governing the keeping quality being the season of the year. Eggs packed with the air cell up remained in good condition longer than those packed with the air cell down.

While the market for Canadian farm products in the United States is a very limited one under present tariff arrangements, nevertheless, says "The Agricultural Situation" bulletin issued by the Dominion department of agriculture, economic conditions in that country cannot fail to have repercussions upon Canada, whether direct or indirect.

The Wheat Agreement provides for an export quota of 200 million bushels for Canada during 1933-34. When the full amount of this quota is exported, Canada will have a carry-over on July 31, next, of about 164 million bushels, the equivalent of probable domestic consumption during 1934-5, and a normal carry-over on July 31, 1935. This means that every bushel of wheat produced in Canada in 1934 will be available for the world market.—The Agricultural Situation bulletin.

Women Study Prospecting

Class Conducted At University Of Manitoba Is Growing

Ever widening their field of interest and activity, women of Winnipeg have entered the prospecting field. Seven women prospectors in embryo attended the first short course for miners conducted by Dr. G. M. Brownell of the geology department, University of Manitoba, and still more registered for the second section.

The first seven finished the initial lessons and received certificates from the department of mines. At present their knowledge is academic, but there has been some talk of an expedition in the spring for practical work.

One woman prospector is actually doing location work in Manitoba. She is Miss Kathleen Rice, honor graduate of Toronto University, who is located at Herb Lake. Miss Rice is a prospector in the real sense of the word, driving a team of huskies, wearing hob-nailed boots and well equipped to care for herself in the wilderness.

Soon Forgotten

Recently an oil painting of a former prominent Canadian statesmen fetched ten cents at an auction sale and when a bill to provide a state memorial to the late U.S. President, Calvin Coolidge, came before the Massachusetts legislature only one citizen at an open meeting for the purpose, appeared to support the measure. How different was the situation when both men held high office and could dispense favors.

Rodeo Planned For London

Canada's Best May Ride In Biggest Show Ever Held

London crowds may soon thrill to see Canadian broncho-busters competing with America's prize-winning cowboys in the biggest rodeo ever held in the world.

So says Tex Austin, lanky Texan rancher and millionaire, who staged the rodeo at Wembley Exhibition ten years ago. That show, says Tex, cost over £19,000 in transport charges alone, but it drew the biggest crowds in the world. The British government netted nearly £23,000 in amusement tax. Rodeo is the most costly sport in the world.

Austin, who went to England to discuss possibilities for another show, is willing to put up £10,000 prize money, limiting entries to the 100 best cowboy and cowgirl money winners at recognized contests in Canada and the United States.

He adds: "The rodeo would last about 12 days. I would take over the best strings of bucking horses, and from 300 to 400 head of long-horned steers, also other wild cattle and unbroken horses. The whole outfit would require an outlay of several hundred thousand dollars."

Likes Alberta Weather

Eighty-Eight-Year-Old Homesteader Keeps House Alone

J. F. Brown, homesteader, 88 years old, regularly walks to town from his homestead, two miles north of Dapp, Alberta, in all kinds of weather. Icy roads, gales or sub-zero weather do not turn him back. He likes Alberta weather.

On one day when the thermometer registered 30 below Mr. Brown arrived in town as usual for his mail and pack of supplies, for he lives alone and does his own cooking and other work. Asked if he were not cold, he scoffed at the idea.

"It takes me about an hour to make the trip and I don't mind the cold. But I am a bit tired to-day, for the wind is blowing so hard," he said.

Born in Inverness, Que., of Irish parents, he came west 20 years ago and homesteaded. Four years ago he retired to Seattle, Wash., to reside with relatives, but he soon returned to Alberta.

"I like it here," he explained simply as he returned to his homestead.

Although his eyesight is failing, he enjoys excellent health.

Newest Dental Chair

Patient Hears Music And Forgets About Being Afraid

A dental chair which its inventor believes the patient will climb into without dread was demonstrated in connection with the Chicago Dental Society's annual convention.

Dr. Elmer S Best of Minneapolis said its development was due to experiments which revealed to him that music had powers also to charm away that mental shrinking with which most people regard their session in dentists' chairs.

Applying his idea, he has worked out a plan whereby a wire connection brings music from a cabinet through the dental chair's head piece to amplifiers which press against the patient's mastoid bones. The patient absorbs the music through the bones and the contrivance can be tuned so low that the music is inaudible in the room.

He said children became so completely interested in the music that frequently they have forgotten their teeth were being worked upon.

Britain's Air University

People From Many Countries Receive Training In Flying

Britain's "air university"—the big flying school at Hamble, on Southampton water—set new records in 1933. Flying hours accomplished by the fleet of 21 aeroplanes aggregated 6,428 (equivalent to some 600,000 miles flown), compared with 4,380 in 1932. In one month alone—August —1,046 hours were logged.

The aeroplanes in the school fleet range from light training machines to amphibians and a multi-engined airliner. Nationals of twelve countries made up the 87 civilians and officers of foreign air forces who attended the school during the year—Austria, Canada, Denmark, Great Britain, India, Iraq, The Irish Free State, Norway, Perú, South Africa, Sweden and the United States.

Predicts Superior Race

Dr. Malcolm MacEachern, a Canadian, and one of the most prominent members of the American College of Surgeons, foresees the beginning of a superior race in one hundred years. At any rate the doctor has taken the precaution to fix a time which will not result in any merry taunt in the event of prognostication failure.

Sulphur Discovery

Only Place In Canada Where Sulphur Has Been Found Is Near Chatham

A search that started January 4, on a farm a few miles northwest of Wilkesport, in Sombra township, near Chatham, Ont., was rewarded with the announcement that sulphur had been discovered, the third place on the continent where sulphur had been unearthed. The other sulphur finds are in Mexico and Texas and Sombra township is the only place in Canada to report sulphur.

A sample of the sulphur was placed on display in the office of Walter Watts, manager of the Chatham branch of the Dominion bank, and it was described as a fine and clear production.

Little Journeys In Science

SNOW

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Snow, so common in Canada, is seldom found south of 36 deg. north latitude, except in regions modified by high altitudes. Snow consists of particles of frozen moisture which result when the air is cooled below the freezing temperature. A cluster of such crystals is called a snowflake. Hail and sleet are raindrops which have been frozen in their journey through the air, but snowflakes are produced when the vapor in the air crystallizes. A snowflake becomes larger in falling through the air because it condenses additional moisture in its descent. They are larger in mild weather than when it is very cold.

Snowflakes assume a great variety of beautiful forms and over a thousand different kinds have been observed. They are seen to the best advantage under the microscope when they are collected on a black surface. The finest forms are found in the polar regions. The star shape is the most common. Some come as hexagonal plates and others as hexagonal prisms.

The "snow line" is the edge of the area of perpetual snow, above which the ground is covered with snow all the time. The latitude regulates the altitude of the snow line. For example in the Himalayas, Lat. 31 deg. N., it is 17,000 feet; in the Rocky Mountains, Lat. 43 deg. N., 12,465 feet; in Norway, Lat. 70 deg. N., 3,400 feet. Generally, that side of a mountain range which is exposed to the prevalent wind has a lower snow line than the opposite side. In the polar regions the snow line approaches the level of the sea.

Snow is a non-conductor and thus it forms a protective covering for mother earth, keeping the temperature of the ground from dropping to an extent that would destroy seeds and plants. The snow melting on the mountains furnishes water for irrigating arid lands, and supplies the rivers with water in the summer. Glaciers are simply huge masses of ice and snow. The first mention of "red snow" was made by the great writer Aristotle, who discovered deposits of it on high mountain tops. In the Arctic regions it is most abundant and is due to very small vegetable organisms.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING

3 teaspoons grated orange rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 tablespoons orange juice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons butter
1 egg yolk, unbeaten
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar

Add orange and lemon rind to fruit juice and let stand 10 minutes; strain if desired. Cream butter; add egg yolk and salt and mix well. Add part of sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Add remaining sugar, alternately with fruit juice, until of right consistency to spread. Beat after each addition until smooth. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers, or top and sides of 8x8x2-inch cake (generously), or about 3 dozen cup cakes.

FRENCH COCOA BALLS

¾ cup cocoa
1¾ cups confectioners' (very fine granulated) sugar
1 cup nut meats
½ cup sweetened condensed milk
1 tablespoon vanilla

Mix ½ cup cocoa and 1½ cups confectioners' sugar. Chop nut meats and add. Moisten with sweetened condensed milk and vanilla. Shape into balls. Combine the remaining sugar and cocoa and roll the balls in it. This recipe makes three dozen.

Veterans Of Rebellion

Twenty-Seven Pensioners Of Northwest Rebellion Of 1885

Twenty-seven survivors of the Northwest rebellion of 1885 draw pensions, Hon. Murray MacLaren, minister of pensions, told the House of Commons. Of these veterans of Canada's frontier war of nearly half a century ago one was a lieutenant, one a warrant officer, one a sergeant, one a corporal and 23 were privates.

The minister's information was given when an item of $22,000 for the payment of these pensions was under discussion. The item passed.

Seeking To Strengthen International Traffic

Germany Is Anxious To Improve Ocean Air Service

Improvement in Germany's air service with foreign countries is an outstanding feature of the 1934 program of the Deutsche Lufthansa.

Efforts to strengtehn international traffic will begin immediately, it is pointed out. A regular scheduled air service to South America via the floating airport "Westfalen," will soon be started. Preliminary flights were said to be successful. It is understood that the regular scheduled service will follow the route of the trial flights which was via British Gambia to the "Westfalen," standing about 1,320 kilometers off the Atlantic, and then to Natal, Brazil.

Recent test flights from British Gambia to Natal, via the "Westfalen" required 1 hours and 20 minutes. Two aeroplanes were used, one flying to the "Westfalen" and the other being catapulted from the floating airport to Brazil. While this service will be operated on a regular schedule, test flights between these points will continue with the hope of eventually eliminating the "Westfalen" stop. It is reported that flying boats are being constructed which are expected to do the 3,000 kilometers without landing.

Traffic between German and all other European countries will be improved on existing routes. Flights are now being made between Berlin and London twice daily, and it is expected that these will be increased to three times daily. Some improvement has already been made in the Berlin Danzig-Koenigsberg-Moscow route.

Churchill River

Stretches One Thousand Miles Across Alberta, Saskatchewan And Manitoba

Churchill river from its source to its mouth is approximately 1,000 miles long, with its watershed extending across Manitoba and Saskatchewan and reaching into Alberta. For much of its course, it is a series of lake expansions joined up by short stretches of river cascading over rapids or falls. The lakes form natural reservoirs and tend to equalize the flow throughout the year. One important hydro-electric power plant has been developed at Island Falls, and there are several other sites which will no doubt be utilized as the need for additional power arises. The Topographical and Air Survey Bureau, department of the interior, Ottawa, has issued a number of map sheets covering portions of the river. These maps were prepared from air photographs.

Proves The Workmanship

Three Men Can Lift Perfectly Balanced Bridge Span

There is another example of the excellence of British bridge building in Middlesbrough, in the north of England. This is a link in the new road between Yorkshire and Durham. It crosses the river Tees and has to allow large ships to pass up to Stockton. So the bridge span has to be 120 feet above the water level when fully raised. It is the lifting of this span that proves the workmanship, for it weighs 2,600 tons. At a test the balance proved so perfect that three men working by hand-power on ordinary hand-pulleys lifted this centre span to the top of the towers easily. Of course, the process of raising the span is to be achieved by electrical machinery, the manual labor is only an emergency measure, as a motor engine also can lift the 2,600 tons of steel.

Economic Survey Of Land

Saskatchewan To Take Inventory Of All Land Resources

Plans for the conduct of a land economic survey to accumulate facts upon which to base future agricultural development of Saskatchewan was announced by Hon. J. F. Bryant, K.C., minister of public works.

"We propose taking an inventory," he said, "of all land resources as a basis of land use, in order to indicate the crop areas and their limits, and to classify soils on the basis of their agricultural value."

Occupied farm lands which are used for purposes for which they are not physically or economically adapted, and are no longer capable of yielding a reasonable return, he said, must be classified and used for the purpose for which they are best adapted, according to a carefully planned programme of land utilization.

Gardening

Planting Shrubbery Just As Early In The Spring As Possible Is Advisable

With a few exceptions, and these are mentioned in any good catalogue, shrubbery, trees and ornamental vines are planted in the spring just as soon as possible. The sooner their roots are covered with soil the better even if this means simply planting them temporarily in a shallow trench. Especially when near a new house where the earth is largely barren stuff thrown out of the cellar excavation, some good soil and a little fertilizer should be added and it is also important to water thoroughly for a week or two. With the larger shrubs and trees prune severely before planting. The soil must be pressed thoroughly about the roots, and trees should be tied to a stout stake to prevent the wind working them loose.

A good garden will save money, improve the health of the family and provide more real pleasure than any other acre on the farm. For those who are planning to devote considerable ground to this enterprise authorities advise selecting a piece of warm, rather light soil, handy to the buildings and laying it out in 100 foot rows for horse cultivation. This is about the right length for many kinds of vegetables for the average family, but much more than is required for lettuce, radish or parsley. On the other hand, extra things which are to be grown for winter storage, like carrots, beets, potatoes, white beans, cabbage and onions, will require several rows.

Even the most unpretentious dwelling, if clothed in trees and shrubbery, fulfills the real requirements of a home. There are, too, practical advantages of such planting, especially in more open places, where trees are used to break the force of storms, prevent erosion, and provide some protection against sweltering heat in summer. Again flowers, shrubbery and trees, grouped about a building add distinct value to that property when the time comes to dispose of it. Rules for arranging planting are simple. The main object is to tie the dwelling to the ground, to make it appear as a natural development. Well around the outside, with possibly more emphasis at the rear, will be the larger and taller trees. These may be native sorts, like the Elm, Maple or Pine or some of the beautiful imported species such as Schwedler Maple, with its bronze-purple foliage, the Japanese Walnut, the Kentucky Coffee Tree or the striking Lombardy Poplar. Against stone, stucco, or gleaming white frame, some of the smaller evergreens like Colorado Spruce, White Cedar and the pyramidal Arborvitae are very effective. While the trees are used to break the general straight lines of the building, detail in this respect is worked out with shrubs. Groups of two or three of the same specimens are planted within a dozen feet of the house with the taller sorts at the corners. Shrubs range in height from 18 inches in the case of some of the Spireas to Honeysuckle and Lilac which reach up 12 feet or more. They are used to screen basement windows, and break the straight lines about steps, corners, and walks. They gradually lift up the vision from the wide expanse of level lawn to the higher trees in the background. Just as the shrubs are used to lead up to the trees, perennial flowers and spring bulbs are grouped in and around the clumps of shrubbery.

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By
EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

Author of "Joretta," "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Bowman and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, send for her and tell her they have a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is that of her foster father's company, which has decided on an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. The critics were enthusiastic about her work, and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $50.00 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She goes to keep a dinner engagement with Peter. She tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household. Avis Werth rents a studio on the same floor as Peter, and invites him to have lunch there. He accepts reluctantly but is favorably impressed with his visit.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXV.

In the meantime, Camilla was absorbed with her new work. She lived with, by and for it. She sketched and planned at the office all day, was on the alert for new ideas and characteristics in her public contacts. She visioned her Tiny Tots in their amusing exploits while she followed Rose's patient instructions regarding her share of the household tasks, went to sleep with them in her thoughts.

Of course, she thought about Peter, too; the thoughts squeezed in deliciously with the crowding, peremptory ones that demanded most of her attention, much as Peter's thoughts of Camilla trespassed into his working hours.

She saw him occasionally, too, but not as often as formerly. It would not always be like that, they told themselves and each other, with blithe words and wistful hearts. Just now, the paramount issue for each of them was to make a temporary success which would develop a greater future.

Camilla believed that if she made good in the first months of the Wheatheart Cereal campaign, the future would smooth itself out into days less arduous and anxious, when she might devote much more of herself and her time to Peter. The first terms of their marriage plans had been that nothing should interfere with their individual ambitions. Those terms were unequivocal and each admired bravely to them, even though the effort cost them incalculable hours of loneliness and longing.

But, as every plan has its salient advantages, it has its weaknesses, also. It never occurred to either of them that the very stimulus of human companionship and relaxation of leisure hours which they were denying themselves in the satisfaction of each other, they were absorbing from others less gratifying.

While Camilla thought that she was contributing more inspiration to Peter's work by leaving him alone; and he believed that because he could not take care of her, he had no right to expect her to share his meager, anxious existence, had they only been as wise as they believed they were, she would have realized that nothing could have contributed so richly to his inspiration as herself, and he would have known that, loving him as she did, every meager, anxious hour of his life that she did not share was a precious jewel lost somewhere along the way to regret.

The first cloud of discord between them appeared on the horizon when she had been working at the office for a month and was gaining confidence in herself rapidly. She had arrived at the studio one Sunday afternoon earlier than Peter had expected her, and found him working on a large color advertisement for a transportation company. Her reactions were due not so much to the fact that he was doing the work, but to her surprise that he had said nothing to her about it and seemed reluctant even then to tell her about it.

He had kissed her rather perfunctorily in greeting and hastened to dispose of his work. Usually, he proceeded with whatever he was doing when she interrupted him.

"Did I disturb you by coming in early?" She was contrite. "I'm sorry. It was such a glorious afternoon and there wasn't another thing to do at the apartment—oh, I am getting to be a very efficient housekeeper—and I just couldn't wait longer to see you," she confessed finally.

"That's more like it," Peter laughed, clapping her to him suddenly and looking down into her deep eyes, tenderly. "Of course, your coming earlier doesn't disturb my work. It does me, though. You are more lovely every time I see you, and that isn't often enough, precious. I was only trying to keep busy so the time would pass more quickly until you came. How's everything?"

"Wonderful, Peter. I'm sure my work is going over big—I just have a hunch it is, because I'm so happy over it, I guess. I am happier every day." Her face glowed with a reflection of her felicity.

As if a chill had suddenly cooled his ardor, Peter's eyes grew somber and a mask of gravity dropped down over his face. His words seemed to Camilla to come suddenly from far away. "The less you see of me, the happier you are." He laughed a little, but it was a mirthless attempt to conceal the bitterness of the jealous male who is helpless to defend himself. Such jealousy is always both unreasoning and unreasonable.

Peter drew away and began to gather up his working materials from the table with swift movements. Camilla wondered frantically if she only imagined the sudden change in his manner. She made a desperate effort to sound casual when she asked, taking off her hat and jacket, "What's this you are doing now?"

"Oh, nothing much," evasively.

"Something new, isn't it?" She approached the table and saw that the huge card was a soft-tone photograph of a bus terminal which Peter had been tinting with water colors. Camilla looked up at him inquiringly.

He flushed slightly and did not meet her eyes. "Oh, you will say it's kindergarten stuff compared with your advertising copy. I wasn't going to show it to you. I'm only doing it for the cash, so I can hold out with my work for the rest of the month."

"Why, of course—why shouldn't you do it, if you can spare the time? It looks fine—for what it is."

"For what it is," he agreed tonelessly.

"Why, Peter, what's the matter with you?"

"Oh," impatiently, "it tears me to pieces to have to grub like that for a little money. It isn't that I mind the extra work. I'd rather dig sewers, for that matter. Only I have to save my dignity—if any—by staying in the art line—if by any contortion of the imagination anyone could call that art." She knew that his bitter impatience was a culmination of overwork and anxiety. But the effort which she made to soothe his resentment was like touching a match to a fuse.

"Oh, Peter, it's a rotten shame that you have to humiliate your own pride and sacrifice your precious time for the sake of a few paltry dollars, while some people have no much wealth they can't even think up ways to use a fraction of it."

"No use to talk about that. The world's been like that ever since it was started long enough for some to get ahead in the race. Those in the rear are either poor runners or victims of circumstances one way or another. They're carrying too much lead or got a bad break. Some will catch up in time, some of the leaders get behind; but they can't all come in first, or even second or third."

"I know, but even a thoroughbred needs a fair chance. Too much of the time, the race is fixed."

"Sometimes I feel that way, too, but I'm going to keep up the pace until I reach the tape and find out."

"Of course you will—and you may be the one to break it." She smiled encouragement and stroked his cheek fondly. He had dropped into a chair and pulled her down beside him as they often sat while they talked.

"But there is so much lack of balance and futile waste of real talent," she continued. "It was just thinking of the time Mother Hoyt was at her wits' end to know what to give dad for his birthday. Not that she particularly desired to give him anything, but it was one of her pet customs to remember anniversaries with impressive and appropriate gifts. He had everything and more than he needed. But she finaly hit upon the idea of a gold keytainer.

"I went with her to the jewelers' when she bought it, and remember that I thought it was silly to pay so much for a thing that looked no better than the average metal keytainer, though I was quite young then. It cost a hundred dollars, but that was only the beginning of the idea. She had his keys copied in solid gold to go with it and each of them engraved with his monogram. I believe the whole thing cost the trifling sum of five or six hundred dollars.

"Did he like it?" amused.

"He had to seem appreciative. But I'll bet he never used his keys again without thinking how many boxes of Wheatheart Cereal profit they represented."

"You have to consider that from another viewpoint, too," he conceded. "I'll bet that jeweler and the locksmith who made the keys, and the metallurgists and all the workmen involved on down the line were thankful for her extravagant whim. Maybe there was even a poor, struggling sculptor somewhere along the line who profited a little by the transaction, indirectly. That's what wealth is for, to keep the ball rolling along so everyone can have a grab at it. That's what most of the trouble is now. Too many people have stopped playing the game and are waiting for the other fellow to begin while they watch from the sidelines."

"I'm glad you gave me the idea that the gold keytainer might have done someone good, after all. I never thought of it that way."

"Sure—like the fellow down the street here who runs the little flower shop. He was telling me yesterday that he used to count big on orders for the patients in the hospital across the park, but lots of those orders are killed now because someone got the idea that flowers were an extravagant luxury in the depression. They think they are being noble to refuse to accept flowers and have the money added to charity funds. Clubs, societies and individuals are taking it up. And where does that get 'em? More charity for the shiftless and less work for people who want to make an honest living! Funny how minds follow the leader blindly, like sheep. No matter what kind of a silly idea jumps over the fence, a whole flock follows."

"But don't you think that's rather sweet to know that the money which might have bought flowers for you that you don't need, is feeding some poor child?"

"No, I don't. Look here, what good does that do if the kid's father had been driving a truck for a florist and lost his job because everybody quit buying flowers? Not only the driver is involved, either. There's the florist and his employes, the growers and their gardeners, the reedsmen, the flower box manufacturers—it's endless. Suppose I worked in a flower shop or a greenhouse to get by while I'm studying. I've done almost everything. Its' all the same principle."

Camilla paused. "Why, that's right. I never thought of it that way before. No wonder the world gets mixed up every so often. It's an awful tangle, isn't it?"

"It's a million tangles all snarled up."

So far, the discussion had been impersonal enough, but it was Camilla's next remark that caused the spark.

An Interesting Collection

Ancient artillery is revealed in a wonderful collection of shot and cannon balls, hundreds of years old, which was found recently by Mr. C. Henderson in the neighborhood of Tantallon Castle and other parts of North Berwick. Some are composed of stone covered with lead, and others consist entirely of either lead or stone. Some bronze needles have also been found.

WIFE'S DELIGHT AT HUSBAND'S LOSS

30 Pounds of Fat!

Here is something all wives of fat men will be glad to know. It is the experience of a woman whose husband recently weighed 230 lbs. She writes:—

"I really feel I must write and tell you that, after taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months, my husband has got his weight down from 230 lbs. to 200 lbs. This has been achieved by nothing else but Kruschen. I am too heavy also, and I started taking Kruschen only three weeks ago. Already I have got down from 153 lbs to 144 lbs. We are delighted."—(Mrs.) C.

Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate, will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

Require Unlimited Patience

Men Who Sell Ocean Passages Deal With Cosmopolitan Throng

The men behind the counters in Cockspur street, who sell ocean passages with as little fuss as if they were tickets to Suburbia, talk patiently with a cosmopolitan throng. They need patience, for the ways of travellers are curious ways. They answer a thousand question. And sometimes they are faced with tragedy.

A little time ago a Canadian woman walked into the Cunard offices. Her eyes were heavy, and her footsteps dragged. She looked round her, uncertainly, and then went to the counter. "I must go back to Canada," she said abruptly. "You must send me back. I can't pay you, but you must send me back. My husband won't send me the money from Canada. He says I have been unfaithful to him. I've got nothing left. You will send me back, won't you?" "But madam," said the man, "how can—" "If you don't I shall shoot myself," she cried. "I'm really desperate. I can't go on any longer." She broke down into tears. The man did his best to soothe her, but what could he do? He could not give tickets away. He said that things would probably come right in the end. He advised her to consult the police.

A little way along the counter a man was saying, "When's the next boat to New York?" "On Saturday," answered the ticket man. "Not before?" "I'm afraid not." "My wife's dying in New York, and I must go over to her. You said Saturday? . . . ."

Near by stood a white-haired woman, with the sweetest face, who was going to America on one of the new cheap trips. "I've never been before," she said, a little timidly. "You see, I've never been able to afford it. But now I'm going out to see my son. He went away twenty years ago, and I haven't seen him since. Fancy, I've never even seen my son's children. He's sent me photographs, but that's not the same thing is it? You can't really tell from a photograph." Then she filled up the big green declaration form, very carefully assuring the United States government that she was neither a polygamist nor an anarchist, and that she had absolutely no intention of assassinating any public officials.—Overeas Daily Mail.

Fruit Growers Generous

Prairies Received Fruit And Vegetables From Okanagan

With plenty of troubles of their own and none too flush of money the Okanagan fruit growers have shown a great generosity this winter toward the less fortunate people in the grain-growing areas on the prairies. From the Okanagan there has been shipped free of charge a total of forty-four cars of fruit and vegetables to various parts of the prairies, particularly Saskatchewan. In some of those prairie districts drought had completely ruined the last season's crop and the people were without means of buying the necessities of life.

It is estimated that automobile accidents took 29,900 lives in the United States in 1933.

Some Peculiar Wills

One Man Recorded His Wishes In Talking Picture

Some of the peculiar wills and last testaments that have been made and provided problems for lawyers to solve were reviewed by S. A. Dickson, K.C., who spoke to the Rotary club at Edmonton on "Weird Wills and Testy Testaments."

Mr. Dickson said the earliest known will was discovered by Sir W. M. F. Petrie, famous British archaeologist, in the ruins of Kahun, in one of the Egyptian tombs that he excavated.

Enumerating some amusing wills he told of one where an Englishman who was at loggerheads with his wife left her only a "shilling with which to buy a rope to hang herself with."

"Perhaps the meanest of wills is that of a man who left his wife one farthing, to be sent to her in the mail in an unstamped envelope," Mr. Dickson said.

An instance of the will of an enthusiastic politician was mentioned as that of an Ontario man who left his office furniture and other effects to his brother "on condition that once a year, on a stipulated date he must stand outside on the sidewalk in front of his residence, after having advertised the event in the newspapers previously, and shout at the top of his voice as loudly as possible so that all might hear him, "Hurrah for Laurier!"

One English testator who hated the Irish left a will in which he outlined "a plan for the extermination of Irishmen." He willed that once a year the sum of ten pounds be expended from his estate in buying whiskey, and an invitation be extended to all Irishmen who cared to accept to gather in the cemetery where his body was buried.

The whiskey was to be taken by the Irishmen in doses of not less than a pint at once and each man was to be supplied with a club in advance of the party. This testator felt sure that the liquor would not all be drunk before the Irishmen would be fighting one another and thus help to exterminate each other.

Mr. Dickson mentioned instances of wills made on gramophone records, and of one in which the testator had a reel of moving talkie pictures taken of himself dictating the words of his will. He left instructions where each person to benefit was to sit and as he told them what they were to have and what he thought of their faults and virtues, he turned in the picture and spoke directly to them.

Chinese Food Is Costly

Oriental Shop In London Asks And Gets Fantastic Prices

A simple little dinner for four—price £50. This is one of the items on the price list of the most extraordinary food shop in London.

It is a little shop in Soho—with slightly fantastic Oriental prices.

"Fish air bladders" at 56s. a pound, the head-bones of the "sacred yellow fish" at 50s. a pound, and tea at 21s. a pound, are only some of the strange commodities you may buy—if you can afford it!

This tiny Soho shop is usually crowded with blue-bloused Chinese, chattering and chaffering. Here and there you may see a dignified English man-servant with a basket, obviously embarrassed at his errand.

Tea, in this Oriental werehouse, is not just tea. It is a precious beverage deserving of respect and a lingering choice between the merits of "Poo Yung Boo," "Loong Chen," of "Tee Goong Lum," all costing between 10s. 6d. and 21s. a pound.

Two or three pounds of shark's fins—a good soup needs this much—cost about £5, and look like long strips of shredded wheat. Boiled with chicken for several hours, it is said to be the most delicious soup in the world—with the possible exception of birds-nest soup.

The "nests" for this soup cost four guineas a pound.

But the tour de force of the whole shop is "snow fungus", which is kept in tightly sealed glass tubes and costs 16 guineas a pound!

This comes from the mountains of Northern China, where it is dug out from the eternal snows.

"Oh, yess," smiled the Chinese proprietor. "Many English people buy these things for special dinner-party. But the Chinese, he buy alla time—it is the food of his home."

Rent Roll On Display

Document Belonging To Henry Eighth Is Dated 1541

The rent roll belonging to Henry VIII., found recently in an old chest in the Midlands of England, has been placed on display in the Public Record Office in London. It would bother a modern accountant for instead of the amounts being set down in columns they are written over the names of the properties. Its date is 1541-2, and it is in Latin and in a calligraphy with many flourishes. The document consists of rolls of parchment, from which mice have taken their toll. Many pages have been badly mutilated.

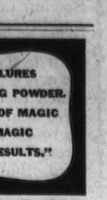

The shire horse, now popular in Europe as being the heaviest in the world, is of the same breed as those used in the Middle Ages by armored knights.

"I WOULDN'T RISK FAILURES WITH INFERIOR BAKING POWDER. LESS THAN 1¢ WORTH OF MAGIC MAKES A CAKE. AND MAGIC ALWAYS GIVES FINE RESULTS."

says MRS. JEANNE MCKENZIE, whose cakes have won First Prize at two Canadian National Expositions, Toronto

MAGIC BAKING POWDER costs so little—and it gives consistently better baking results. Actually less than 1¢ worth of this fine-quality baking powder makes a good big cake. It doesn't pay to take chances with inferior baking powder. Bake with Magic and be sure!

Chance To Be Pioneers

Trip To Northern Mining Fields Is Good Test

Those who bemoan the decline and fall of the good old pioneering spirit might try getting into some of the mineral fields in northern Canada. The schedules of the Canadian National Railways give a varied choice of routes from rail-head on. Sometimes it is by plane, but mostly the adventurers have to depend on dog team. That's the way into Gods Lake or the Herb Lake fields off the Hudson Bay Railway in northern Manitoba. In northwestern Ontario, in the Red Lake district, the trip from the railway into the mining area is made on sleighs hauled by caterpillar tractors. The distance is 145 miles. After that trip anybody ought to know just what kind of a pioneer he is.—Canadian National Railways Magazine.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

VALUES

What is the worth of a little song?
No one can truly say,
For sometimes its echoes may linger long,
And sometimes they die in a day.

What is the worth of a smile, a kiss?
Only a seer could guess;
Though often they bring but a moment's bliss,
Yet all of a life they may bless.

Who can value a mood, a word,
A passing stranger's glance?
Whether the heart be cold or stirred
Seems but the work of chance.

Some must go to the world's far ends
Seeking life's ardent fire;
Others find where their road first bends
All of their heart's desire!

Takes Home With Him

Explorer Keeps Everything Necessary Packed In His Car

Col. Harry Keigh Eustace, 57, explorer and lecturer, has no trouble getting room for a night when he arrives in a strange town.

Packed in the back of his automobile is everything that is necessary for this man, whose life has been spent in the open—a bed against the side of the car, a gasoline stove, blankets, provision chest and other incidentals necessary for a perfect home.

During the past 40 years he has travelled more than 30,000 miles. For 27 years he has hunted and photographed animals in Africa.

Mice and rats sometimes destroy bee colonies in the winter, if care is not taken to exclude them from the bee-cellar or wintering place.

Little Helps For This Week

"Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble-minded, support the weak, be patient toward all men." 1 Thessalonians, 5:14.

The little worries that we meet
each day
May lie as stumbling blocks
along our way,
Or we may make them stepping-
stones to be
Of grace O Lord to Thee.
—A. E. Hamilton

We must be continually sacrificing our own wills, as opportunity serves, to the will of others, nearing without notice sights and sounds that annoy us, setting about this or that task when we would far rather be doing something very different; persevering in it often when we are thoroughly tired of it, keeping company for duty's sake when it would be a real joy for us to be by ourselves, besides all the trifling untoward incidents of life, bodily pain and weakness long continued, and perplexing us often when it does not amount to illness, losing what we value, missing what we desire, disappointment in other persons, wilfulness, ingratitude, folly, in cases where we least expect it.—J. Keble.

Prince Weds Commoner

Grandson Of Swedish King Gives Up Royal Rights

A romance like a fairy tale of fiction came true with the wedding of Sigvard, Prince of Sweden, Duke of Uppland and grandson of the Swedish king, to the beautiful Fraulein Erika Patzek, 22-year-old daughter of a Berlin industrialist.

The 26-year-old prince—like Lennart, his cousin — abandoned his princely rights for a romantic union with the German actress.

They were married in the large council chamber of Caxton hall, instead of in the small registry office, despite the fact a municipal election was being held in the building.

A Gypsy Burial

Early Victorian funeral trappings, including a plumed hearse drawn by six purple draped black horses, were used at the recent funeral of Levi Boswell, son of the late gipsy queen of Kent.

HERE'S THAT QUICK WAY TO STOP A COLD

Take 2 Aspirin Tablets

Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 4 Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of water and gargle according to directions in box.

Almost Instant Relief in This Way

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get Aspirin Tablets. Aspirin is the trademark of The Bayer Company, Limited, and the name Bayer in the form of a cross, is on each tablet. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Aspirin Tablets dissolve so completely they leave no irritating particles. Get a box of 24 tablets or a bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

AT THE AVALON
"Torch Singer"

Ralph Rainger, composer of the first popular "torch song", "Moanin' Low," which Libby Holman made famous in the first "Little Show" on Broadway, hee written a musical anomaly—a lullaby of jazz.

This unique musical composition was written for Claudette Colbert in the Paramount picture, "Torch Singer" which plays here this week.

As Mimi Benton, Miss Colbert, for the greater part of "Torch Singer," plays a scheming siren of the cabarets. When, for a lark, she accepts an offer to croon lullabies for children over the radio, torrid syncopation is too much of a part of her. Though her radio-songs carry the soothing, motherlove touch; nevertheless, they swing along in jazz style. Hence, Rainger's lullaby in jazz.

Adapted from Grace Perkins' magazine story, "Mike," "Torch Singer" is the third consecutive picture to present Miss Colbert in a "wicked" character role, a woman of dual personality.

Also Buck Jones in "Border Law."

Coming "King Henry VIII" said to be the best picture of the year, April 19, 20 and 21.

Mae West in "I'm No Angel," April 26, 27 and 28.

An Exhibition Of Childhood

London is to witness a most unique exhibition when, on April 19, will open a display of relics of "Children throughout the Ages", acclaimed as the most comprehensive portrayal of child life down the centuries ever presented to the public. The event derives significance as much from the historic value of the various exhibits, as from the purpose to which the proceeds are to be devoted. The beneficiary will be one of London's most deserving charities.

The relics to be displayed link child life with the dim remote ages of the past, the oldest exhibit being a Chinese doll said to date from 600 B.C. From that far distance down the years, the varying fancies of children, the toys which brought them pleasure, the garments they wore, the furniture which decked their nurseries and playrooms, all will be traceable in the array of exhibits from the pre-Christian era down to the end of the reign of Queen Victoria.

Queen Elizabeth's christening robe, her cap and mittens, a portrait of her as a baby (by Holbein), will be on show. A shirt worn by Charles I, as a child of two, his boyhood's brocade coat, will find prominent place in the display beside Oliver Cromwell's christening robe. Here then that historic enmity which ended so tragically for the monarch is made to symbolise the transitory nature of human passions and, transformed, serves the charitable purposes of to-day. Napoleon, too, will be represented, not in a manifestation of childish desire but rather in evidence of that other love which great and lowly have in common, and which is, of course, as old as childhood is. The present given by the Emperor Napoleon to his infant son, the King of Rome, has been obtained as an exhibit.

Perambulators and cradles and such adjuncts or childhood that flourished in the seventeenth century, have been collected to augment the display. Children's furniture from the sixteenth to the nineteenth centuries will be shown, as well as a display of British and foreign children's clothes, hats, shoes and gloves of the same period, early games, cards and jig-saw puzzles, playbooks and lesson books. A series of rooms is being arranged to depict child scenes of bygone days with inevitable wax figures in the Madame Tussaud tradition. There will be portrayed in similar fashion a Kate Greenaway scene, a Victorian Sunday, the ancient nanny and the modern nurse.

The British royal family, as usual where charity is the object, is according wholehearted support to the exhibition. Queen Mary is contributing playthings of her own childhood, and toys which enthralled the young Prince of Wales, his brothers and sisters. Two gold rattles given by Queen Victoria to the Prince of Wales also have been offered, and considerable interest will attach to an exhibit of the immature efforts of the Prince and his brother, the Duke of York, as artists. It is said these efforts are just as atrocious in result and effect as any of less exalted youth.

Perhaps one of the most interesting of the relics to be exhibited, however, has no connection whatever with the childhood of the great or the near-great. It is a pewter feeding bottle, believed to date back to about 1750. It was discovered in possession of a farmer who was using it to feed his lambs. Probably no more fitting place could be found for this memento of a bygone period and a long-forgotten childhood than alongside the relics of royal youth and palace playrooms. It is a striking reminder of that strange democracy of the very young, that constant symbol of the "great levellers"—childhood and death—and it is to be hoped that as such, in these transitional days, it will be interpreted by those privileged to patronize the exhibition.

* * * * *

There is a timely moral lesson, too, in the story recently told by one of the better known financial journals. It happened that a shabbily dressed, ostensibly poor, elderly woman entered the classic portals of a large uptown bank in New York, and told the uniformed guard she desired to open an account. She was shown to the new account department where three officers of the bank were more intent upon the approaching lunch hour than upon new business, particularly business which came in such inauspicious garb. As it happened, lunch won, and the woman was left to the manager.

After stating her mission, the old lady asked to see a statement of the bank's financial position, much to the surprise of the manager who was accustomed to having the institution's financial status taken for granted, particularly by small depositors. However, he presented the requested statement, answered courteously some startlingly intelligent and pertinent questions, which satisfactorily received, brought the intimation the lady wished to open an account. She gave her name and other necessary information, and casually, for he expected a small initial sum, he asked: "How much do you wish to deposit?"

"Thirty-one thousand dollars", replied the old lady, equally casually, as she proceeded to count out the money in bills of various denominations.

Report New Pitchblende Find

Possible Extension Of Radium Fields At Great Bear Lake

Possibility recent radium ore discoveries at Great Bear Lake may extend over a larger field was seen with reports of a new strike at Hottah Lake, 130 miles south of Cameron Bay, N.W.T. The report was confirmed by E. H. Hargreaves, son of Edward Hargreaves, Barrie, managing director of Great Bear Lake Development Company.

The new pitchblende find is located approximately half way between Cameron Bay and Fort Rae and will, if it proves up to first expectations, extend operations in the known field considerably south of Great Bear Lake. Upwards of 50 claims already have been staked at the new property and drilling will start as soon as weather permits.

Mr. Hargreaves was one of the party of six flown into the district by Pilot Walter Gilbert late in February. He arrived for a brief visit before returning to complete preparations for work on the company's new claim.

Fish That Cannot Float

Specimens Believed To Exist Only In River In Virginia

A fish that cannot float lives in the head waters of the James River, in Virginia. Specimens of this fish, believed to exist only in this one corner of the earth have been obtained by the Smithsonian Institution, and revealed that it belongs to the sucker family, and has no air bladder. As a result, it cannot float like other fishes, but can only sink to the bottom or keep swimming. This is no handicap for the sucker for it had to rid itself of the air bladder in the course of evolution or become extinct. The reason is that the mountain streams where it is found are so swift that the little suckers had to remain on the bottom or be washed away. So they rid themselves of their "water wings" and survived.

MILBURN'S HEALTH AND NERVE PILLS

Weary Days—Sleepless Nights Wrack the Nervous System

Men and women toss night after night on sleepless beds. Their eyes do not close in the refreshing repose that comes to those whose nerves are right. They are irritable and nervous, weak and worn out, and everything looks dark and gloomy.

Milburn's H. & N. Pills is the remedy that is required to restore them the blessing of good health. They bring back the sound refreshing sleep, tone up the nerves, and impart that sense of buoyancy to the spirits that is the result of renewed mental and physical vigor.

Strange Accidents At Sea

Ships' Officers Give Accounts Of Two Unusual Collisions

Recalling strange accidents at sea, officers of the steamer Beechpark, at Saint John, gave first-hand accounts of two unusual collisions.

Chief Engineer David Thomson was with the Volumnia when that ship carried troops across the English Channel in war days. Travelling without lights, troop-carriers proceeded at full speed over courses ordered clear by the admiralty. A stocky trawler returning from the banks had not heard the warning and unwittingly crossed the troopship's track.

"It was the first time an iron ship was cut in two," said Thomson. "We struck the big trawler broadsides, plowed right through the hull and out the other side. From the port I got a fleeting glance of the stern half sinking."

Only five of the crew of 39 were rescued, and one died soon after. "The confused survivors wouldn't believe it. They couldn't understand why we had not foundered also."

Capt. Will Masson told how the steamer Montpark, a famous Q-boat during the war, met a strange end while under his command in 1919. A crash occurred while the Montpark was feeling its way through poor visibility one night a few days out from the Tyne mouth. Capt. Masson saw the bow of another ship protruding into his own, heard terse orders in a foreign language, and watched the unknown vessel back away into the mist.

The Montpark sinking, its crew jumped into the sea. Capt. Masson and a few seamen were rescued from a life-raft the following evening, but other members of the crew were never found and the ship which left them helpless was never identified.

Progress For Persia

Mechanization Of Old Handicraft Industries Looks Like Mistake

And now the shah of Persia has evolved a five-year plan! Progress is to make its debut through the mechanization of the ancient handicraft industries that have created so many delights for collectors. Great carpet and rug factories will rear their looms where patient hands have labored after the traditions and the patterns of the centuries.

Gone will be the features that made oriental-rug collecting a delight to those with incomes permitting it. No longer will variations in color tell of the exhaustion of some native dye mixture, or irregularities in pattern betray the advent of a new native weaver. The innovations that began with analine dyes and chemical washes will reach their climax in a uniformity that matches the best American "orientals."

Indeed, progress in Persia may mean no progress at all. Who will want a genuine oriental rug if it differs not a whit from the mechanized product of the occident?

What Motorists Pay In Taxes

Automobilists Contribute More Than 27 Per Cent. To Revenue

More than 27 per cent. of the total revenues collected by the governments of the different provinces of Canada is contributed by owners of automobiles in the form of taxes on gasoline and license fees. This information is disclosed in a report just issued by the Canadian government bureau of statistics.

The report states that the total amount paid by automobile owners to the provincial treasuries in the fiscal year 1932-33 was $45,499,458, of which gasoline taxes accounted for $24,948,280 and $20,551,173 was in license fees.

In the province of Ontario 35.9 per cent. of the total government revenue is paid by motorists; in Quebec, 32 per cent.; in Nova Scotia, 27.2 per cent.; in New Brunswick, 27.3 per cent.; in Alberta, 24.1 per cent.; in Prince Edward Island, 22.7 per cent.; in Saskatchewan, 19.8 per cent.; in British Columbia, 17 per cent. and in Manitoba, 15.45 per cent.

Modern Astronomy

The teacher in a certain school had been explaining to the class the signs of the Zodiac, and after a while decided to test what they had learned.

"Now, Jimmie," she said, "tell me one of the signs of the Zodiac."

"Taurus, the Bull," answered the boy brightly.

"Right. Now, Willie, another one," pointing to the next boy.

"Cancer, the Crab," said he.

"Right, again," remarked the teacher, pleased with the class. "Now, next boy, young Albert, tell me another sign."

The boy addressed hesitated a few moments, looking thoughtful, and then, with a smile of happy recollections, said brightly: "Please miss, Mickey the Mouse."

The British Sabbath

After an intensive campaign on the question of opening the cinema theatres on Sunday evening, the voters of Bournemouth have declared against the proposal by a vote of 17,339 to 10,853, a majority of 6,486. Evidently the "English" Sunday has not lost its influence in Bournemouth, says the Montreal Gazette.

Restricting Rubber Supply

Britain And Holland May Find Plans Upset

W. L. Clark, writing in the Border Cities Star says: "With Great Britain and Holland controlling 95 per cent. of the world production of rubber and the United States consuming 50 per cent. of the output, conversations are being held between the British and Dutch with a view to restricting the supply.

In 1928 the British tried the Stevenson restriction plan which curbed exports of rubber as well as actual production. The world price of crude rubber went up from 16 cents to $1.50 per pound. Then the Dutch producers speeded up and ruined the British scheme. The price sagged. It is now between 9 and 10 cents per pound.

Just now the Dutch are dickering with the native producers in the Dutch East Indies. Although the natives do not contribute much to the total supply, it is sufficient to knock the props from under any restriction scheme of the British and Dutch. In the meantime the United States is asking the right to take part in the discussion as the chief rubber consumer.

The way the rubber restriction plan can be upset so simply prompts the thought that Soviet Russia could easily make any wheat agreement between the other nations look pretty sick."

Motor License Revenues

Alberta Government Does Not Favor Extending License Year To April 1st

Revenue from Alberta motor licenses amounted to $800,000 for January and February of this year, Premier Brownlee stated in the legislature in showing that this is an important source of provincial receipts at the year's opening.

At the time, the premier was dealing with the government's firm opposition to acceding to the largely-signed petition from the Alberta Motor Association asking that the license year be extended from January 1 to April 1.

Formation of a moving picture censor board for the prairie provinces may be considered shortly, according to information given the legislature by Mr. Brownlee. Estimates for the censor board in this province were under discussion. The amount passed was $8,900, an increase of $20 over last year.

Certified Garnet Wheat

Alberta's one and only carload of certified Garnet wheat is to be released for distribution to farmers for seeding purposes this spring. This lot of 1,600 bushels was secured by the department of agriculture shortly before the Russian Soviet purchasing commission contracted for all the available stocks in the province and has since been in storage at Edmonton.

Before Day Of Specialist

Early days in Toronto were vividly pictured by Dr. J. H. Elliott in his address before the Canadian Institute there. What, for instance, could be more interesting than the story of William Warren Baldwin, who at the beginning of last century, practised both law and medicine? The day of the specialist had not dawned in 1880.

Gifts Exchanged

Prince George And African Chief Shake Hands

Prince George and Chief Tshekedi of the Bamangwato tribes, whose banishment a year ago aroused international attention, were the central figures in a cordial gathering as the king's youngest son opened his tour of Bechuanaland and Rhodesia.

The native chieftain, sent from his territories for flogging a white man and subsequently reinstated by King George, warmly assured the prince of the tribe's loyalty to the throne, and presented him with a magnificent set of skins.

The prince shook hands and in turn presented the chief with a walking stick. Subsequently Prince George shook hands with Tshekedi's mother, Queen Semane, whose dramatic appeal to the king on her son's suspension brought about his reinstatement.

Skates Over Century Old

Were Used During War Of 1812 To Carry Messages

In the war of 1812 Aaron Price used a pair of skates to carry messages along the Chippewa and Niagara rivers in Ontario.

To-day these skates are in Regina, cherished possessions of L. Thomson, commissioner for oaths. Aaron Price was his grandfather.

"My grandfather could write his own name on the ice with these skates," said Mr. Thompson, who has used them on Winnipeg rinks many a time.

At least 122 years old, the skates are built on a wooden base which attaches to the shoe. In the heel is a screw and a leather strap keeps the toe in place. The blade is one-quarter inch in width.

Girl Stammerers

Says Pace And Strain Of Modern Life Is Responsible For Increase

Nervous stammering, hitherto confined to males, is becoming among girls, according to Sir Thomas Oliver, a medical specialist of Newcastle, who has made an exhaustive study of the matter.

The change has become apparent since the Great War, he says, and the number of stammering misses is increasing.

Other specialists confirm Sir Thomas' findings, a London physician suggesting that the pace and strain of modern life is responsible. "The fact that girls on leaving school now enter business may be partly responsible for the number of between 16 and 20 years who stammer," he said.

New Television Machine

Will Be Ready For Demonstration At Chicago Show

The world's largest television machine, being built at the Horton Steel Works, Fort Erie, N.Y., will be ready for demonstrations at the re-opening of the Century of Progress Exhibition at Chicago on May 1. The builder of the machine, U. A. Sanabria, of Chicago, said the machine would have a 30-foot screen and its transmitter would weigh more than 5,000 pounds. It would have a definition sufficiently large to handle an entire scene at one time.

British Flight Squadron

Suggestion Is Made That A Visit To Canada Should Be Undertaken

A suggestion was made in the British House of Commons that the United Kingdom send to Canada detachments or flights of airplanes to "show the flag" in the Dominion. The planes would be sent aboard a naval aircraft carrier.

Discussion of the proposal arose during the debate on the air estimates when Oliver E. Simmonds, Duddeston Conservative and aircraft manufacturer, told the house Canada had never seen a squadron of British planes, although every year squadrons of machines from the United States made exhibition flights to Canadian air pageants.

Mr. Simmonds said he was in Ottawa early this year and heard hope expressed that the Royal Air Force would "show the flag" in Canada. He asked that the air ministry consider the matter.

Sir Philip Sassoon, minister for air, described the suggestion as "very interesting."

Passenger Train Pooling

Expected To Effect Big Saving Under Arrangement

The passenger train pooling arranged for in the Montreal-Toronto, Ottawa-Toronto and Montreal-Quebec services, as extended and effective from March 11, will produce a total saving of approximately 1,000,000 train miles per annum, divided about evenly between the C.N.R. and C.P.R. and on the basis of a conservative estimate will represent a saving to each company of approximately $500,000 per annum. This information was given in the House of Commons by Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, based on a telegram from Chairman C. P. Fullerton, of the C.N.R. board of trustees.

Dickens Was Good Reporter

Began Career In Press Gallery Of British Parliament

A new work by Dickens which has been running serially in many newspapers is appropriate for at least two reasons. His genius first broke on the world in instalments. Was there ever a time in the history of literature when a world of readers waited as impatiently as people did for the immortal monthly "parts" that began with "Pickwick?"

The second reason is even more pertinent for newspaper men. Dickens began his career as a reporter. He worked in the press gallery of parliament from his nineteenth to his twenty-third year, until he set to work on "Pickwick." He was one of the best parliamentary reporters of his day, with an extraordinary reputation for accuracy. He told the New York editors in one of his farewell speeches, "To the wholesome training of severe newspaper work, when I was a very young man, I constantly refer my first successes."

High Broadcasting Station

To spread Hungarian culture throughout the world and make it possible for nationals residing in other countries to keep in easy contact with the fatherland, Hungary will erect the highest radio broadcasting station in the world. It will be on an island south of Budapest. A trellis work steel tower will rise 932 feet, and a telescopic shaft on top will make the total height 1,022 feet.

Has Plan For Laying Foundation Of New Municipalities In The West On A Village System

Noting the recent proposal of a British settlement company to locate thousands of families on unorganized land in Canada within the next few years, James H. Ramage, farmer at Crestwynd, Sask., outlines a plan for laying the foundation of new municipalities on a village system.

"Under the present arrangement municipal offices, churches, stores, schools and other social conveniences are widely scattered," Mr. Ramage pointed out. "My idea is to have a main street through the centre of every township, extending it necessary or possible, throughout the length of the province.

"The advantage is in having such utilities as roads, electric power lines, telephone systems, water works and other public services joined together in the most useful and economical manner," continued Mr. Ramage.

"The main street would do away with the necessity of further expensive railway development, since it would become an all-season transportation artery used by trucks and buses," explained Mr. Ramage. "As the farms are situated now the farmer, in most cases, is several miles from a highway of any kind, and seldom is he on a direct route to his shipping point on the railroad. The highway system is so diversified in direction and development is slow. There are too many roads and not enough good ones."

The farm houses would all face the "main street," it is pointed out. Where about 75 families occupy a settled township, there could be 600 or more, Mr. Ramage thinks. Saskatchewan with 3,700 townships might support 3,000 persons per township and have a population of 11,000,000. Alberta, Manitoba and the Peace River district in the Northwest Territories could support correspondingly large populations, said Mr. Ramage.

The 23,040 acres in a township would be divided up as follows: Forestry work, 150 acres; gardens, 120 acres; buildings, 120 acres; shelter belts of trees, 1,050; farming, 21,-660 acres. "This distribution would reduce the wheat acreage as suggested by Premier Bennett and others," said Mr. Ramage.

Means Hard Work

No Short Cut To Anything That Is Worth While

What is needed to-day is not new things, but true things. It is an old world. There is enough of happiness and progress in the world, just for the bringing out. It means hard work, not big talk. It is one of the old truths, the new truths, the everlasting truths, that there are no short-cuts to things worth while. Those who foolishly imagine that they have some new way to change the world, or the part of the world they adorn, are simply selling themselves false thoughts by high-pressure hypnotism. The world continues to make progress to better things, not in new ways, or by loud mouthings, but quietly and surely through effort and thought and labor.

Going Ahead With Work

Reclamation Project Of Dutch Government Involves Huge Sum

In parliament the minister of waterways announced that the government intended to proceed with the Zuider Zee reclamation scheme, despite the great cost entailed, many million guilders.

Up to January 1, this year, 200,000,000 guilders had been spent. On the other hand, it is estimated that the reclamation will give work to 3,000 laborers for ten years, which fact alone, in view of the unemployment situation, the government deems sufficient reason for its continuance.

Curing Pork

Important facts to remember in curing pork and other meats are that meats which are allowed to freeze on the surface before the animal heat has escaped from the interior will not have as pleasant a flavour as they would have if cooled off gradually. Meat ceases to take salt when the temperature falls below 36 degrees Fahrenheit. Dry curing must therefore be carried on in a room, the temperature of which does not long remain below 36 degrees. — Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Braille Pocket Diary

Diaries for the blind are now published for the first time in history, and blind persons are now able to carry a Braille pocket diary. The diaries, which are being made in London at the headquarters of the National Institute for the Blind, are on the loose-leaf principle to allow a diarist to enter engagements by means of a small Braille writing frame.

The number of hogs graded in Canada during 1933 was 3,172,986.

Prominent Agriculturist

Sir Robert Grieg, Retiring From Important Post In Scotland

Sir Robert Grieg, now retiring from the important post of permanent secretary of the department of agriculture in Scotland at the age of 60, will be remembered in western Canada as a settler in Carievale, Sask., in the early 90's, and as manager of a farm for a kinsman in that part of the country, named John Macqueen. He has often visited Canada since, first in 1908, later as an advisor on agricultural research on the formation of the National Research Council, and as an important British expert at the Ottawa conference of 1932.

Sir Robert was born at Balcurvie, Fife, and educated at Edinburgh university. After his visit to Canada he assumed lectureships at Chester, Newcastle, and Aberdeen. In 1911 he became one of the commissioners of the board of agriculture. During the war he received the M.C. for services in France, 1917-18. He also holds the degrees of LL.D. and D.Sc.

Menace Of Low Grade Seed

Growers Taught The Value Of Producing Only High Grade Product

Low grade seed is a menace to the reputation of Canada in the export markets and a drag in the domestic market. The marketing of seeds in general in the last three or four years has been attended by serious difficulties and comparatively low prices to growers, but has at least taught the value of producing a high grade product. No. 1 seed has almost always sold at a profitable price, while low grade seed has been unsaleable or sold at a loss to the grower. It should be the practice of every grower, advises The Agricultural Situation bulletin, to save seed only from clean fields, so that it may be cleaned to grade No. 1.

GAY ACCESSORIES GIVE NEW ZEST TO SPRING COSTUMES

And they're easily made and at a saving.

Here's a trim little ensemble idea to be thinking about in matching hat and gloves.

The pattern includes three different hat models for your choice. It also includes the gloves, the popular slip-on cuffed type.

The scheme as shown in "B" and "C" in inky-blue ribbed crepe is stunning.

View "A" would also be lovely in ribbed crepe, especially in bright red.

View "D" is a popular brimmed hat, exceptionally becoming. Paris is making it in tweedy wool weaves, and felt. Later for summer, it is sportsy in pastel silks, cotton, linen and rayons.

Style No. 895 is designed in sizes small, medium and large.

Price of pattern 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap coin carefully.

Quota On Canadian Cattle

Agreement With Britain May Be Modified Later In The Year

While no steps have yet been taken to enforce the quota on the import of Canadian cattle into the United Kingdom, steps will be taken if they become necessary, Hon. Robert Weir, minister of agriculture, told the House of Commons.

At the same time the minister stated the quota might be modified later in the year if the Canadian government could show cause for such action. One change had already been made at the request of Canada.

When the British government decided imports should be restricted it asked Canada to co-operate in restricting the exports of cattle during the first three months of 1934 to the number exported during the same period in 1933.

As cattle shipments from Canada were light during the first three months last year, the Canadian government asked and secured an extension of the quota basis to the first six months of the year. Mr. Weir said the reason for the quota was the desire of the British government to strengthen the cattle market which had been depressed by large purchases of Irish cattle by British buyers in anticipation of an embargo and by drouth which had led to many unfinished cattle being tarown on the market.

Insect Fights Insect

Parasite Laboratory Used To Help Control Of Spread Of Pests

A form of insect control which is receiving considerable attention the world over, and particularly in Canada through the Dominion Entomological branch, is known as the biological method of pest control, or in other words, the introduction and encouragement of natural enemies of the insects. Many of the worst insect pests in Canada are not native to the country but are invaders from abroad, especially in years gone by when no plant inspection service was maintained. Parasites known to attack these foreigners in their native country are brought to Canada and reared carefully at the Entomological branch's parasite laboratory at Belleville, Ont. At the proper time these parasites are liberated in areas where they can best attack the marauding insects, much after the style of setting a thief to catch a thief. In order to prevent, as far as humanly possible, new insect pests entering Canada, officers of the Dominion Entomological branch are constantly on the lookout for any forms of insects present on importations of plants or plant products. Thus are dangerous insect enemies being intercepted.

The Sleighs Of Moscow

Soviets Are Putting Colorful Drivers Out Of Business

Soviet Russia's war on private enterprise is driving the colorful Izvostchiks, or sleigh drivers, out of business. This winter only a few are to be found in Moscow, where once they were the popular transportation guides of gay parties who took midnight rides to dances where gypsies played. The gay parties are gone and the sleigh drivers and their horses are pitiful reminders of the olden days. It is planned to replace them with municipal taxis, but so far there are only 500 cabs for the 3,500,000 residents of Moscow, and those who wish to ride must use the crowded street cars.

Three Welshmen in an inn praising a glass of beer:

First Man—"Best glass of beer; I never tasted no better."

Second Man—"So did I, neither."

Third Man—"Neither did I, too."

The Hog Marketing Outlook

Highly Favorable Canadian Export Prospects

The consumption of pig products in Canada during 1932 reached the highest point in the history of the industry at 91.7 pounds per capita. This statement appears in the Agriculture Situation bulletin just issued by the department of agriculture at Ottawa, in which the following summary of the hog situation appears.

"Briefly summarizing the situation, it would appear that the hog outlook is favorable to the producer. While it is likely that there will be some temporary price declines during the prerent year, the trend is upward. Market supply prospects are for a moderate volume during the first half of the year, followed by a fairly substantial increase. At market prices such as ruled during the early part of the year, there should be greater interest in the purchasing of feed grains and a falling off in the number of unfinished pigs offered. Prospects for export appear to be satisfactory, and the restrictions existing on exports from foreign countries selling to the British market are working quite favourably toward stabiliazation of prices. Despite the present favourable export outlook, improvement in breeding, feeding, selection and pack so as to secure a large per centage top grades of bacon is much more desirable than a marked increase in general production.

It is quite safe to forecast a substantial improvement in the quality of the 1934 production, as a result of improvement in type of sow and sire used as foundation stock, and of better feeding practices than in any previous period in the history of the industry in Canada. This is highly favourable to Canadian export prospects."

Interesting News Bulletin

Souvenir Of 1881 Event Printed On Tree With Charcoal

The first news bulletin in the Rocky Mountains has found its way into the hands of the "printer's" daughter, Mrs. R. A. Chowne of Vancouver, who has forwarded it to her father in England, more than 52 years after it went to press.

Printed with charcoal on a Douglas fir, the bulletin car still be read: "July 13, 1881—Tregent cut his foot. Major nearly drowned. Both doing well."

The "bulletin publisher" was A. E. Tregent, now resident of Guildford, Surrey, England. He and Tom Wilson of Banff, who cut down and preserved the bulletin in 1901, are the last two remaining members of the Canadian Pacific Railway pathfinders of 1881.

The record on the log refers to an accident which befell Tregent a few miles west of Banff and as a result of which he was left on the trail to recover from a badly lacerated foot. Major A. B. Rogers, leader of the pathfinders, in crossing Bath Creek, afterwards named for the incident, from the Bow River to the Great Divide, was swept away on his pony and only Tom Wilson's quick action saved his life.

No Reason At All

The little guests at a party were being arranged in a group for a flashlight photograph. Seeing one little fellow who appeared rather awed the photographer spoke to him kindly.

"Cheer up, Sonny," he said. "Smile at this little girl over here."

"Why should I?" he asked indignantly. 'She's my sister."

Collection Has No Equal

Britain Has Specimens Of Every Living Insect On Earth

The building of a permanent home in South Kensington for one of the most precious scientific possessions of the Empire is about to be begun. The vast unrivalled Entomological Collection of the Natural History Museum is to be housed, after years of exile in alien departments, in a building six floors in height and a hundred and forty feet in length, adjoining the western ends of the present Museum block. The final plans for at least one half of this block are about to be completed and confirmed, and work on the erection itself may begin in the new year. The collection has no equal abroad. It is an all but complete catalogue and encyclopaedia of every living insect on the earth and the gaps in its completeness are filled in year by year. Its specimens, in their tens of thousands, are standards from which the insect world is named, and scientists who discover new or puzzling insects in any part of the globe send to the experts in charge for information. One of the most needed benefits of the Entomological Block (which will never be open to the general public) will be the new ease and convenience with which the experts of the Imperial Institute of Entomology will be able to plan their war against our costliest enemies—locusts, flies, caterpillars, and all the insect plagues which eat up the crops and imperil the prosperity of an Empire which girdles the world.

Campaign Was A Success

Inoculation Brings Diphtheria Death Rate Far Down In Montreal

No more perfect example of the efficiency of modern practice in preventive medicine could have been devised than that disclosed by the figures resulting from the campaign for the inoculation of Montreal children against diphtheria.

The result of that campaign and the co-operation of Montreal parents in it has been—at least to the layman—almost magical. Deaths have fallen from 31 in 1931 in each 100,000 of population to two per 100,000 in the year just completed. What this means is most strikingly exemplified by the fact that at the Alexandria hospital for contagious diseases they have actually closed the department hitherto kept busy by diphtheria alone for the splendid reason that there are no longer enough cases to justify keeping it open.

When it is remembered that from 1906 to 1912 Montreal's black record was 155 cases for each 100,000 of population, to-day's figures are most encouraging.

A Very Ancient Sport

Ski Matches Were Favorite Sport In Middle Ages

An exhibition of skis in Berlin has shown that ski-ing is one of the most ancient sports in the world.

Drawings on stones found in Sweden, thought to be of about 3,000 years ago, show skiers in pursuit of reindeer (though chasing reindeer was necessity rather than sport to these early skiers). Some years ago there were found in a peat bog wooden skis from the Stone Age.

In the Middle Ages ski matches were a favorite form of entertainment in Scandinavia. Then ski-ing dropped out of fashion until nearly the end of the last century. To-day its devotees are numbered by the hundred thousand.

"John, I bought some sheets, pillow cases and blankets to-day."

"Waat about it, dear?"

"Shall I put them down in my budget book as cover charge or overhead?"

DESIGN FOR PALACE OF THE SOVIETS STOLEN?

SOVIET DESIGN. ZORACH'S MODEL

While the accusation of William Zorach, American sculptor, that the design for the Palace of the Soviets, to be constructed at Moscow, is an adaptation of a design he entered in a world-wide competition, goes unanswered, plans are being rushed by Soviet authorities to begin work on the gigantic memorial to Nicholai Lenin. The huge building, to face the Red Square, will rise 1,369 feet taller than the Empire State Building in New York. It is in the form of a telescope, each section of which will be surrounded by columns, giving the effect of pyramided cog wheels. On top of the huge shaft a statue of Lenin will stand in characteristic speaking pose.

Recent Studies Go To Show That British Columbia Salmon Livers Are Rich In Vitamin A

Good News For Miners

Dreaded Blindness From Insufficient Light Will Be Conquered

Nystagmus, the dreaded "miner's blindness," which costs the colliery industry in England hundreds of thousands of pounds a year in compensation, will be conquered, it is believed, within five years following discoveries at Sheffield University by the Safety in Mines Research Board, says an item in the London Daily Express.

Nystagmus is caused by lack of sufficient light in the pits. The investigating scientists, after years of research, found means of increasing the power of miners' lamps from one to ten candle-power.

Another and greater advance has now been made, and as soon as the collieries can afford to make the change-over the men working coal-cutting machines, and even the miners hewing coal with a pick at the coal face, will work in a light equal to that of home lighting.

Specially designed lighting sets adapted from motor-car headlights have been experimented with successfully.

The greatest of all dangers in the pit—fire from explosive gases reaching the hot filament of a broken electric bulb—has been overcome by an ingenious device.

This automatically cuts off the electric current before the gas can reach the glowing filament in the event of the glass bulb being broken.

Many disheartening failures were met with before the device was perfected.

It will take five years for the new system of lighting to be adopted throughout the colliery industry, but it is expected that the process of eradicating nystagmus will already be well advanced by then.

Demand For Farm Horses

Dominion Wide Interest In The Use Of Horses

The horse breeding industry is making a steady advance. This is particularly true in regard to farm horses, sixteen hundred of which were supplied to the Eastern provinces from the prairies in 1933.

According to the new publication "The Agricultural Situation" just issued by the department of agriculture at Ottawa, greater activity was shown among breeders of purebred draught horses, as the number of registrations of Clydesdales, Percherons and Belgians was almost double that of 1932. With the depletion of grade farm horses a greater demand is said in the pamphlet to be developing for young purebred stock as foundation breeding animals. With the Dominion-wide interest in the use of horses as a factor in successful agriculture in Canada, there is an increasing activity among farmers and breeders in the production of more and better horses for both farm work and breeding purposes. This situation promises a keener demand and better prices, which is bound to result in a general forward movement in the horse breeding industry.

Miniature Engraving

Achievement Of English Engraver Was Among Most Notable

Dr. Charles H. Beeler, famous as an engraver and inventor of engraving apparatus, has died at the age of 79. One of his most notable achievements was the engravings of the complete "Lord's Prayer" on a matrix half the size of a pin-head. Each letter was only 560 thousands of an inch high, but the 412 characters and spaces, forming the sixty-two words, were so clearly cut that printed copies could be taken from the matrix.

Bits Of British Wit

Once in a while you hear a popular song that really is good. But most of them are just fair to maudlin.

San Francisco has an aerial "Black Maria." We understand that the machine was given by a society devoted to the uplift of the criminal classes.

Following an explosion in a kitchen a newly-engaged maid was blown through a window into the garden of a Bloomsbury house. Unfortunately it was not her evening out.

Discussing the Irish deadlock a political writer suggests that both sides should get together. The idea of one side getting together seems to have been overlooked.—London Punch.

Even Pictures Prohibited

Even publication of pictures or photographs of persons wearing the prohibited uniforms, is forbidden by the Irish Free State government's bill banning the wearing of uniforms by any other than the Free State national forces, it was revealed with issuance of the text of the bill. The carrying any weapons, including sticks or clubs, at public meetings and processions is also banned.

Recent Canadian studies have shown that the oil content in British Columbia salmon livers is much lower than in the livers of various other fish—but they have also shown that the salmon oil is very rich in Vitamin A.

As a matter of fact, the poorest sample of salmon liver oil examined in the investigation was found to contain twice as much Vitamin A, per gram, as was present in a recognized medicinal liver oil with which comparisons were made, and the richest salmon sample forty times as much! The importance of the findings, of course, comes from the fact that Vitamin A is an essential healthmaking substance and from the further fact that quantities of livers could be obtained in the course of British Columbia salmon canning operations if their utilization for oil production were undertaken. While there has heretofore been some production of oil from salmon waste in British Columbia, and it is to be remembered that in salmon the oil of the fish is not concentrated in the liver but is distributed through the body tissues as well, the livers have not been used by themselves in the reduction plants.

The studies in connection with the Vitamin A potency of the salmon livers have been carried on at the Pacific Fisheries Experimental station at Prince Rupert, one of the fisheries research centres conducted by the Biological Board of Canada, which operates under the control of the Dominion Minister of Fisheries. They are the first work to be done on liver oil from British Columbia salmon, and, indeed, no comprehensive study of the Vitamin A potency of salmon liver oil has previously been reported anywhere.

While the richness of salmon liver oil as a source of Vitamin A is the main point established by the British Columbia work, another interesting fact is that livers from Spring salmon caught in the Skeena River area yielded the richest oil samples. Next were samples from Vancouver district Springs, then oil from Sockeye taken in different areas. Coho, Pink, and Caum livers were less potent than the others. It was also noted with interest during the studies that the data obtained suggested that there may be a relationship between the amount of body pigment present in the different kinds of salmon and the Vitamin A potency of the livers.

Then, too, it was brought out that the oils from the salmon livers are all rather high in iodine value, and iodine as is now well known, is the preventive of such diseases as goitre.

Relics Of Boer War

Many Articles Restored To Families Of Original Owners

A gold ring, four Bibles, and a hymn book, brought to England after the Boer War, have been returned or offered, to the High Commissioner for South Africa for restoration to the families of the original owners. About a month ago there was sent to the high commissioner a small hymn-book, taken from a dead Boer over 30 years ago, and containing a letter from a Boer woman to her husband written during the war. This was forwarded "with the regrets of a British Tommy." Efforts to trace the sender have not been successful, to the disappointment of the family to whom the book belonged.

The publicity given to the circumstances of the return of this hymn-book has resulted in the further acts of restitution. The gold ring was found on the battlefield of Elandslaagte in October, 1899. It bears the date "May 15, 1876," and the letters "Z.A.R.", the initials of the old South African Republic, embossed on the outside. The Bibles contain the names of the original owners and the complete family tree. One sent from Chatham contained a letter to be forwarded to the original owner or his relatives, in which occurs the message: "It gives me the greatest pleasure to be able to restore a long-lost family treasure, which the Bible evidently was. With all the best Christian wishes, God bless you."
